Module Introduction

Welcome to Offeror Information for Cost Analysis!

You might be wondering, "How will the information in this module help me in my job as a contract specialist?"

Cost analysis involves the need for offerors to gather, document, and submit information prior to the close of negotiations.

Ensuring that this information is current, accurate, and complete enables you to determine if you are getting a fair and reasonable price for the services rendered and products procured.

"How do I ensure that the information I receive from the offeror is current, accurate, and complete?"

Overview - Truth in Negotiations Act (TINA)

At the heart of this module is the Truth in Negotiations Act, which you will usually hear referred to as "TINA."

TINA is a public law enacted in 1962 for the purpose of providing full and fair disclosure by contractors in the conduct of negotiations with the government. TINA requires:

1. Contractors and subcontractors submit certified cost or pricing data for negotiated procurements over $700,000
2. Downward adjustment to the contract price, including profit or fee, where it is determined that the contract price was increased because the contractor submitted defective certified cost or pricing data

As you can see, TINA offers some important protections to the government.

D

ResourcesGlossaryHelp

Overview - Exceptions to TINA

While TINA protects the government, the same laws that establish requirements for certified cost or pricing data also provide for mandatory exceptions. Never require certified cost or pricing data when an exception applies. Refer to FAR 15.403-1 to learn more.

Except a procurement from TINA requirements if:

- The negotiated price is based on adequate price competition
- The price is set by law or regulation
- The item is considered a "commercial" item (see FAR 2.101), unless it is a non-commercial modification of a commercial item where the modification exceeds the greater of $700K or 5% of the contract price
- The head of the contracting activity waives the requirement

Overview - TINA Certification

TINA helps you as a Contracting Officer because it requires offerors to certify that their certified cost or pricing data is current, accurate, and complete.

The certification TINA requires establishes information parity for the government when having to negotiate fair and reasonable prices based on cost analysis, which in turn, helps you achieve your ultimate goal of negotiating a fair and reasonable price.

For this reason, you must ensure that the certified cost or pricing data the contractor or subcontractor submits is current, accurate, and complete as of the date of the agreement on price or, if applicable, an earlier date agreed upon between the parties that is as close as practicable to the date of agreement on price.

Overview - Soliciting Certified Cost or Pricing Data

How do we obtain Certified Cost or Pricing data?

The FAR requires that certified cost or pricing data be submitted in one of three formats:

- The format outlined in FAR Table 15-2, which you can review under the Resources tab
- An alternate format outlined in the solicitation/contract
- A format selected by the offeror

Refer to FAR 15.403-5\(b\)\(1\) and FAR 15.408\(l\), 15.408\(m\) for more information.

Cost or Pricing Data

Other than Certified Cost or Pricing Data

DATA OTHER THAN CERTIFIED COST OR PRICING DATA means pricing data, cost data, and judgmental information necessary for the contracting officer to determine a fair and reasonable price or to determine cost realism. Such data may include the identical types of data as certified cost or pricing data, consistent with Table 15-2 of 15.408, but without the certification. The data may also include, for example, sales data and any information reasonably required to explain the offeror's estimating process.

Review Section B of the Acquisition Plan for the initial BBOMS contract.

Did the Truth in Negotiation Act apply to this initial procurement? Why or why not?

- ☐ A. Yes. This total value of this acquisition was initially estimated at $192,974,052, which is over the TINA threshold of $700,000. Therefore, submission of certified cost or pricing data was required.
- ☐ B. No. While the initial award amount exceeded the TINA threshold of $700,000 the Contracting Officer determined, through market research, that adequate price competition would exist for this requirement. Therefore, the exception at FAR 15.403-1(b)(1) applied. Offerors were not required to submit certified cost or pricing data.
- ☐ C. No. While the initial award amount exceeded the TINA threshold of $700,000, the Contracting Officer determined, through market research, that this is a commercial service. Therefore, the exception at FAR 15.403-1 (b)(3) applied.

FAR 15.403-1 (b) (1)

FAR 15.403-1 (b) (1) states, "Even if only one offer is received, a price may still be based on adequate price competition if:

- The Contracting Officer can conclude there was a reasonable expectation of adequate price competition, the price is reasonable, and this is approved at a level above the Contracting Officer.
- The proposed price is reasonable when compared with other prices obtained and properly normalized for economics, quantity, etc., from contracts that resulted from adequate price competition.

However, on November 24, 2010, the Director of Defense Procurement issued a memo entitled, "Improving Competition in Defense Procurements", which provides additional guidance in competitive situations when only one offeror is received.

Improving Competition in Defense Procurements Memo

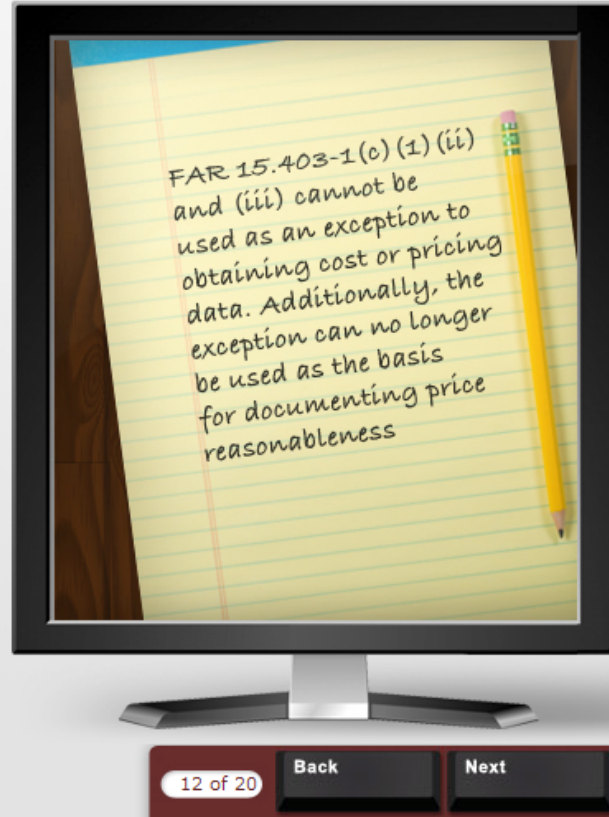

As of the date of that memo, it is the Department's policy that FAR 15.403-1(c)(1)(ii) or (iii) cannot be used to determine that an offer is based on adequate price competition when only one offer is received.

Since the exception to certified cost or pricing data at FAR 15.403-1(b)(1) cannot be applied under this policy, Contracting Officers must obtain certified cost or pricing data unless one of the exceptions at FAR 15.403-1(b)(2) through (5) apply, or a waiver is obtained in accordance with FAR 15.403-1(c)(4).

Furthermore, adequate price competition cannot be used to justify price reasonableness. As stated in the November 24, 2010 memo, the basis for negotiations shall be either certified cost or pricing data or data other than certified cost or pricing data.

Exceptions to TINA – Adequate Price Competition

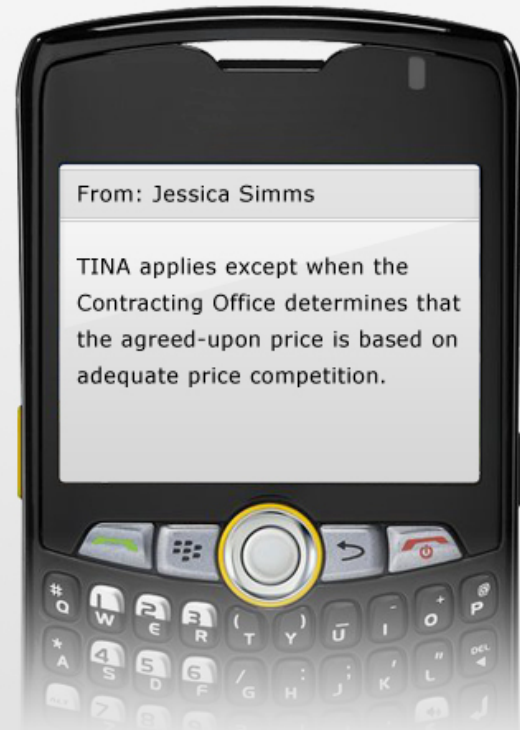

A price is based on adequate price competition if there are two or more responsible offerors competing independently where price is a substantial evaluation factor for award and there is no finding that the successful offeror's price is unreasonable.

Even if only one offer is received, a price may still be based on adequate price competition if:

- The Contracting Officer can conclude there was a reasonable expectation of adequate price competition, the price is reasonable, and this is approved at a level above the Contracting Officer.
- The proposed price is reasonable when compared with other prices obtained and properly normalized for economics, quantity, etc., from contracts that resulted from adequate price competition.

Modification of BBOMS Contract Subject to TINA?
Jessica Sims

Hi,

Good work determining that the initial BBOMS procurement had adequate price competition and was exempt from TINA. Now we need to determine if we can require the submission of Certified Cost or Pricing Data for this modification.

Remember, if the price of the procurement is going to exceed the TINA threshold of $700,000, we have to obtain Certified Cost or Pricing Data before the award of any negotiated contract, the award of a subcontract, or the modification of any sealed bid, negotiated contract, or subcontract.

Contract Price Adjustment for TINA Purposes

When calculating the amount of the contract price adjustment for modifications or equitable adjustments, consider both increases and decreases.

For example, a $200,000 modification resulting from a reduction of $500,000 and an increase of $300,000 is a pricing adjustment exceeding the current certified cost or pricing data threshold of $700,000.

In other words, add the absolute value of each adjustment to obtain the total amount of the price adjustment for TINA purposes.

A decrease of $500,000 and an increase of $300,000 is a price adjustment, for TINA purposes, of $800,000.

$($500,000) + $300,000 = |$500,000| + |$300,000| = $500,000 + $300,000$ or $800,000.

Authority to Request Certified Cost or Pricing Data

In the 1950s and early 1960s, the General Accounting Office (now the Government Accountability Office) discovered numerous instances of overpricing by government contractors on negotiated contracts. At the time, the government had no legal redress to re-price the contracts unless it could show fraud or deliberate misrepresentation by the contractor.

In 1962, Congress passed the Truth in Negotiations Act. The Act required, among other things, submission of complete and current certified cost and pricing data to the government during pre-award negotiations for all for certain contract actions.

The requirement at FAR 15.403-4 (a) (1) (iii) is based in statute. The Truth in Negotiations Act (TINA), 10 USC § 2306a (1) (b), provides this authority which is implemented by regulation in the FAR.

Requiring Certified Cost or Pricing Data When TINA Does Not Apply

So far in this lesson, you have learned that TINA requires certified cost or pricing data to be submitted for procurements over $700,000 unless certain exceptions apply.

Does this mean that you can only require certified cost or pricing data when TINA mandates it?

No. If none of the exceptions or prohibitions apply, the HCA may authorize you to require certified cost or pricing data for any contract action at or below the certified cost or pricing data threshold provided the action exceeds the simplified acquisition threshold.

Of course the HCA must justify the requirement and document a written finding that certified cost or pricing data are necessary to determine the price fair and reasonable, including the facts supporting that position, but it is possible. What are the costs and benefits of requiring certified cost or pricing data?

Can I require certified cost or pricing data even when TINA does not apply?

Obtaining Certified Cost or Pricing Data

Let's say that you have determined that certified cost or pricing data is required. No exceptions apply, and the procurement is above the TINA threshold of $700,000. How exactly do you communicate the requirement to submit certified cost or pricing data to the offeror?

The Contracting Officer is required to specify in the solicitation the instructions for the offeror to submit certified cost or pricing data or data other than certified cost or pricing data. FAR Part 15.408 (l) and (m) identify the provisions that should be used to communicate this information to the potential offeror depending on the circumstances of your acquisition.

Identifying the submission requirements in the solicitation permits offerors to gather and document information during proposal preparation. If you require the data after proposals are submitted, it delays the process.

A few more words on formatting...

In addition to the formatting requirements you have learned so far, many contracting activities establish specific format and data requirements tailored to the products typically acquired by the activity.

In addition to FAR and local requirements, the Contracting Officer may establish format and data requirements for a specific contract.

Be careful. You must obtain the data required for cost analysis, but collection, formatting, manipulation, and analysis of unnecessary data can unreasonably increase contract costs. Be sure to only request data that prudent buyers and sellers would reasonably expect to affect price negotiations significantly.

Defective Pricing

Remember that the goal of TINA is to establish information parity between the government and the contractors and subcontractors. If the certified cost or pricing data is defective, how can you determine the fairness of the offers?

If the data is subsequently found to not have been current, complete, or accurate, TINA provides an administrative remedy to the government to recover any overpricing as a result of this defective data.

See FAR 15.408\(b\) through FAR 15.408\(d\) for more information.

Obtaining Data After Proposals Are Received

Inevitably there will be instances when you need to obtain certified cost or pricing data after proposals are received.

- If offerors were required to submit certified cost or pricing data and you find out later that certification was not required, treat the data as data other than certified cost or pricing data.
- If the offeror refuses to provide the required data (or the data is deficient in some way), attempt to obtain the data again. If the offeror continues to refuse, withhold contract award and refer the contract action to higher authority.

What happens if the solicitation did not require certified cost or pricing data but you determine that you need to obtain it after you have received the proposals? Are you out of luck?

If the solicitation does not require the submission of certified cost or pricing data, but the Contracting Officer later determines that the data are necessary to determine price reasonableness, go ahead and require the offeror to submit the required data prior to the close of contract negotiations.

This will delay the process, but may save you from paying too much.

Certified Cost or Pricing Data for Subcontracts

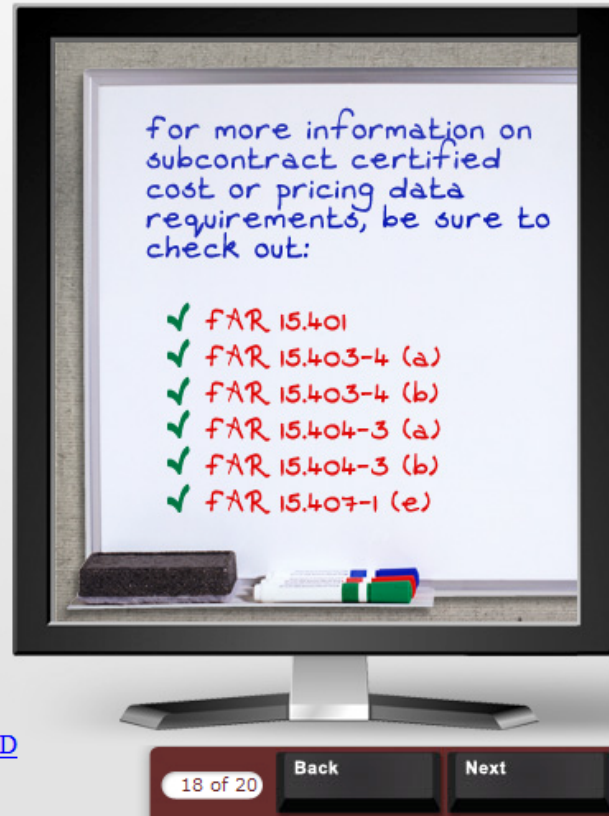

As the Contracting Officer, you are responsible for the determination of price reasonableness for the prime contract, including subcontracting costs.

When certified cost or pricing data is required, any subcontractor or prospective subcontractor will submit to the prime contractor or appropriate subcontractor tier the following in support of any proposal:

- Certified cost or pricing data
- A certificate of current certified cost or pricing data in the format specified in FAR 15.406-2

Just like with the prime contractor, the government is entitled to a price adjustment, including profit or fee, for subcontractor certified cost or pricing data found to be inaccurate, incomplete, or noncurrent as of the date of final agreement on price or an earlier date agreed upon by the parties.
